

The Journal of Population and Sustainability

New issue of The Journal of Population and Sustainability now online (Open Access) at its new home – The White Horse Press:
www.whp-journals.co.uk/JPS

The Journal of Population and Sustainability (JP&S) is the only interdisciplinary journal exploring all aspects of the relationship between human populations and environmental sustainability.

This is an exciting time for the JP&S as, with the extensive expertise and experience of the team at The White Horse Press, we look forward to further development of the journal including reaching a larger readership and achieving wider citation indexing.

New online submission and peer review system via the above link. The journal has recently achieved the DOAJ seal, for journals that indicate best practice in Open Access publishing.

For all enquiries please contact the Editor, David Samways:
david.samways@jpopus.org

Volume 6, Number 1. Contents

Introduction

DAVID SAMWAYS – EDITOR

Population and Sustainability: Reviewing the Relationship Between Population Growth and Environmental Change

DAVID SAMWAYS

Stakeholders' Perceptions of the Linkage Between Reproductive Rights and Environmental Sustainability

CÉLINE DELACROIX

Public Perceptions on Population: US Survey Results

KELLEY DENNINGS, SARAH BAILLIE, RYAN RICCIARDI AND ADOMA ADDO

A Wager on Global Food Prices 2001–2020: Who Won and What Does it Mean?

STAN BECKER AND DAVID LAM

A Graphical Presentation of the Steady-state Economy Model

THEODORE P. LIANOS

The Journal of Population and Sustainability

is published by The White Horse Press and sponsored by Population Matters

www.whpress.co.uk / populationmatters.org

ISSN 2398-5496