IUSSP Seminar on

Global Perspectives on Marriage and International Migration

October 20-21, 2011

The Ritz-Carlton, Seoul, Korea

Organizers

The IUSSP Scientific Panel on the Process and Dynamics of Cross-Border Marriage

Statistics Korea

Korea Institute for Health and Social Affairs

Invitation

Marriage migration across borders has been pervasive all over the world in the past decades. Marriage immigrants increasingly constitute a significant part of the mainstream life in host societies. Issues related to transnational marriage, including its socioeconomic dynamics and cultural diversity, have all drawn the interests of scholars in both Eastern and Western societies. The processes of international marriage across nations, the immigrant experiences and related social conflicts, and the overall impact on host and sending societies have received the attention of not only scholars but also policy makers.

The IUSSP Scientific Panel on the Process and Dynamics of Cross-Border Marriage is pleased to host a seminar titled Global Perspectives on Marriage and International Migration in conjunction with Statistics of Korea and Korea Institute for Health and Social Affairs (KIHASA). The seminar involves collaborative efforts by leading scholars and researchers with diverse perspectives and expertise on issues related to cross-border marriage and marriage migration. It is our wish that this seminar will go beyond the boundaries of existing scholarly and political interests, and provide a constructive forum through which we can gain a deep and better understanding of the critical issues at hand. The IUSSP, Statistics of Korea, and KIHASA cordially invite you to take part in this seminar by sharing your relevant interests and knowledge.
